A 4 DAY/4 DECADE CELEBRATION IN SOUND

The Best of Pacifica—A 40th Anniversary Celebration In Sound

In July, WBAI will feature some of the best programming from the Pacifica Archives as we celebrate four decades of excellence in radio during four days in July, beginning on Monday, July 17th.

This day is devoted to the issues of war and peace, with looks at U.S. policy at home and abroad, the CIA/Contra/Iran affair, The Warsaw Ghetto uprising, Star Wars, and Vietnam. Tuesday, July 18th is Rainbow Day, a day devoted to multicultural programs about many of our communities in New York and around the world, with a special report on Nelson Mandela, on the occasion of his birthday. Wednesday, July 19th gives a special focus to Central America, as it is the 10th anniversary of the Sandinista government in Nicaragua and a year of decisions for many of the countries in the region, with the proposed Arias peace plan. We complete our celebration on Thursday, July 20th as we examine the ecological problems which affect us all, with the visions of Ralph Nader, Barry Commoner, and Buckminster Fuller.

The Pacifica specials begin at 8:30 each morning and continue for most of the broadcast day. True to WBAI's pledge of keeping our listeners informed of current developments of all sorts, many of these special programs are followed by an in-studio discussion of present developments along the lines of the themes of these documentaries. Please consult the listings inside for a detailed look at these special days of programming.

As we pledge to you, so must you to us. During these days of radio excellence, you can pledge your support to WBAI by calling (212) 279-3400 for a regular $45 subscription or a $25 senior/student subscription, and help Pacifica continue for another 40 years—into the 21st century.

Some Thoughts on "Uncle Sam and The Swastika"

Or, How I Began To Uncover The Hidden History Of The Cold War

For several months, WBAI has been airing excerpts from a documentary series called, "Radio Free America." Most of the programs broadcast to date have focused on the struggle between the Soviet Union and the Western "democracies," and fascist influences on the development of the US national security establishment.

My interest, research, and subsequent development of radio programs originate with some information that came to my attention during the years of the Watergate scandal.

In the fall of 1973, I read a story concerning a visit Richard Nixon made to Dallas, Texas, on November 22, 1963. According to the article, Nixon was there as a lawyer for the Pepsi-Cola company. He was in Dallas for several days to attend a convention and flew out of the city at roughly the same time as John Kennedy (Nixon's Democratic opponent in the 1960 Presidential race) was being slain. When interviewed by the FBI in February of 1964, Nixon claimed that he left Dallas on November 20th; despite irrefutable evidence that he in fact left on the 22nd. THe discrepancy between the facts and Nixon's account of them spurred me to do research into the assassination of President Kennedy.

It became apparent as the Watergate investigation unfolded, that there was more to the story that what the general public had been lead to believe. As I read more about President Kennedy's assassination, I came across many of the same people who later played significant roles in the Watergate drama: Gerald Ford; Leon Jaworski, Watergate Special Prosecutor; Frank Sturgis, Watergate burglar; John Sirica, the judge who presided over the original criminal investigation; and John Connally, former Governor and Nixon's Secretary of the Treasury. All these individuals figure prominently one way or another in the story of Kennedy's murder.

The most intriguing and terrifying aspect of the assassination is the significant number of Nazis and fascists who were connected with the killing. This group consisted of a mixture of the Third Reich alumni as well as both German and American Neo-Nazis. For example American Nazi Party fuhrer George Lincoln Rockwell's name, telephone number, and Arlington address were in alleged assassin Lee Harvey Oswald's address book at the time of his arrest. The Warren Commission never saw fit to investigate how the alleged "leftist" Oswald would be interested in such a person any more than they saw fit to look into the close and friendly relationship between the Oswalds and the violently anti-Communist White Russian and Eastern European exiles in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Many of the latter group had worked for the Nazis during WWII in an espionage capacity, and functioned similarly for the US intelligence agencies after the war. I don't think that these people would ever have socialized with a member of the Fair Play For Cuba Committee, the New Orleans chapter of which Oswald was the only member.

Shortly after uncovering the first of these Nazi connections, I came across the brilliant work of the late Mae Brussell. Her research is the dominant influence on my work. Following Mae's example, I turned to the radio as the medium for the communication of my research, which has branched outward from a study of the country's political assassinations to an inquiry into the functions and influence of the US national security establishment and international fascism. The results of this research, originally produced for California community radio stations, can be heard every weekday morning on WBAI.

Special thanks to Ed McMullen for all his dedication to the project. He has worked many long and hard hours in making the programs possible. Thanks also to Tom Whelan for his continued support of the project.

WBAI Wins Awards From the NFCB

Close to 300 broadcasters attending the 1989 Annual National Federation for Community Broadcasters (NFCB) Conference in Berkeley, California this past May witnessed representatives from WBAI receive awards for programs produced for this station.

In the Special Events category, WBAI received the Golden Reel Award for its Listeners' Action programming on homelessness, and a Silver Reel award for Amy Goodman's news coverage of West Bank affairs in Israel.

In giving a powerful voice to a powerless minority—the homeless of New York City—and by taking things one step further by involving the homeless in the action that would change their social conditions, WBAI was lauded for elevating the principle of community access to an even more socially prominent position. The producers responsible for the Homeless series included Andrew Phillips, Paul Gorman, David Mendelsohn, Andres Byard, Alice Krakauer, David Levine, Jeffrey Hoff, and Lori Klamaner.

A main subject covered throughout the four day conference, both formally in panel discussion and informally over coffee in the mornings, was the objectives of community radio. This event proved a good forum for broadcasters to renew their goals and visions in evaluating their programming and ease of community access to their stations.

The purpose of community radio originally was to give voice and access to those people and ideas that normally have no voice or access to the media. In receiving honors from the leading organization of community radio stations, we are reminded that WBAI (and the other Pacifica stations) are numbered among the oldest and most successful of this controversial, stubborn, and proud breed.
